

iTREC!

Iditarod Trail to Every Classroom

Connecting youth & communities along the Iditarod National Historic Trail

Sponsors

Iditarod Historic Trail Alliance
Chugach National Forest
Bureau of Land Management

Partners

Alaska Department of Fish & Game
National Park Service
Anchorage School District
Mat-Su Borough School District
State of AK - Dept. of Natural Resources
Alaska Botanical Gardens
Anchorage Park Foundation

As the Iditarod Historic Trail Alliance and its partners continue to offer high-quality professional development opportunities promoting place based service learning through iTREC!, teachers and community partners are developing opportunities to help build lifelong stewards of Alaska's public lands, natural resources and cultural heritage along the Iditarod National Historic Trail.

For More Information about the iTREC! program, please contact:

Annette Heckart
annette.heckart@usda.gov
(907) 743-9502

What is iTREC!?

iTREC! is a yearlong professional development program that provides teachers with place based service learning skills to help today's youth become lifelong stewards of Alaska's public lands, natural resources and cultural heritage. iTREC! educators develop their own curriculum to increase student literacy skills and foster student understanding of and appreciation for the public lands and resources connected by over 2,400 miles of the Iditarod National Historic Trail (INHT). These curricula integrate hands-on study of the natural and cultural resources of communities from Seward to Nome addressing concepts in ecology, sense of place, civics, outdoor recreation and volunteerism.

This targeted investment is producing impressive results. In its first 10 years alone, iTREC! has trained 126 teachers who are now effectively reaching over 10,000 K-12 students in 11 rural and urban communities along the trail. Within the next 5 years, the iTREC! program goal is to include all communities along the trail, expanding its reach to over 15,000 students.

At the heart of iTREC! is the belief that students who are immersed in the interdisciplinary study of their own "place" are more eager to be involved in the stewardship of their communities and public lands.

iTREC! Goals

Through the iTREC! program, the Iditarod National Historic Trail will be used to:

- Foster awareness of and a personal connection to the trail
- Connect rural and urban communities along the INHT
- Engage youth and communities in active outdoor experiences
- Build lifelong stewards of Alaska's public lands, natural resources and cultural heritage

iTREC! Results

* Cumulative reach for the first 10 years of the program is approximately 10,000 students.

* Currently working with 11 communities along the INHT:

Seward
Cordova
Girdwood
Anchorage
Wasilla
Palmer
Galena
Ruby
Nome
Holy Cross
Unalakleet

* 126 teachers from these communities are actively participating in the program:

104 elementary school
15 middle/high school
7 combined schools

* iTREC! curricula are being developed in 11 subject focus areas:

geography, history, social studies, science, art, journalism, special education, PE, career guidance, business technology, multi-subject (general instruction)

* Preliminary evaluation results show a direct link between iTREC! and an increase in both physical activity and environmental awareness in students.

Program Overview

iTREC! is composed of 3 multi-disciplinary professional development workshops for educators, supplemented with on-going partner support and guidance:

Summer Institute (5 days)

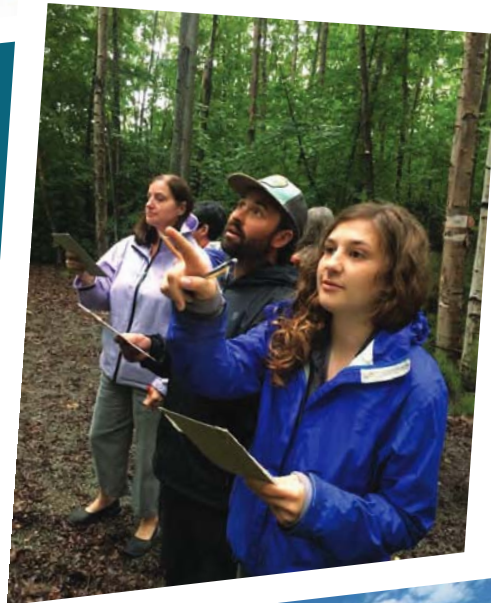

Focus: Introduction to the Iditarod National Historic Trail, place based service learning and curriculum planning

Fall Workshop (3 days)

Focus: Curriculum development and evaluation

Spring Workshop (3 days)

Focus: Curriculum implementation and sustainability

Participant Feedback:

"I am so excited about the group of wonderful, innovative, dedicated individuals and groups of people who are dedicated to educating our future. This partnership & sharing of ideas & information would not happen without the iTREC! program. I can't wait to share with my peers and students so they can increase their history knowledge and community involvement."

"The time and resources that were committed to this program really made me feel valued as a teacher. It was obvious that many partners were personally invested in the project and that really motivated me to be successful. I feel really well supported and that a lot of people are wanting me to succeed and willing to help me."

"For me, the iTREC! program has become the baseline for which I will assess all future professional development. My iTREC! experience has changed my life!"